The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is conducting its first Five-Year Review of the Rockaway Borough Wellfield Superfund Site located in Rockaway Borough, Morris County, New Jersey. This review seeks to confirm that the cleanup conducted at the site, which included: 1) wellhead treatment of the borough supply wells; 2) potentially responsible party groundwater extraction and treatment system; 3) EPA-lead groundwater extraction and treatment system; 4) potentially responsible party soil vapor extraction system; and 5) EPA-lead soil vapor and extraction system to ensure the effectiveness of the remedy continues to be protective of public health and the environment and is functioning as designed.

What is an EPA Five-Year Review?

EPA inspects Superfund sites every five years to ensure that cleanups conducted remain fully protective of human health and the environment. These regular reviews, which are required by federal law when contaminants remain at a site, include:

- Inspection of the site and cleanup technologies;
- Review of monitoring data, operating data, and maintenance records, and
- Determination if any new regulatory requirements have been established since EPA's original cleanup decision was finalized.

The five-year review is expected to be completed by the end of March 2020 and the results will be available at the local site repositories listed below.
